1. Grant of License

Quantemol Ltd. ("Quantemol") grants the trial customer (the "Licensee") a temporary, non-exclusive, and non-transferable license to use the specified Quantemol software (the "Software").

2. Purpose of Use

This trial license is granted for the sole purpose of the Licensee's internal evaluation and testing of the Software's features and functionality. The intent of the trial is to allow the Licensee to assess the Software's suitability for their needs before the purchase of a full license.

3. Restrictions on Use

The trial Software is provided for evaluation purposes only and is strictly not to be used for productive or commercial work. The generation of novel data for research, publications, patents, commercial projects, or any other operational use is not permitted. Any use of the Software to generate or publish data for purposes other than internal evaluation will be considered a breach of these terms.

4. Specific Trial Limitations

As agreed during the trial license negotiation, specific operational restrictions are in place for the duration of the trial. These limitations are tailored to the Software product and may include, but are not limited to:

- Permitted Chemistries: Restrictions on the types of chemical species or reactions that can be modelled.
- Usage Quotas: Limits on the number of calculations or runs that can be performed.
- Performance Restrictions: Potential limitations on computational performance or access to certain high-performance features.

5. Governing Terms

These trial terms are supplementary to Quantemol's End-User License Agreement (EULA). The Licensee must review and accept the full EULA upon first launching the Software. By using the trial Software, the Licensee acknowledges and agrees to abide by both these specific trial conditions and the general terms of the EULA. Violation of these terms may result in the immediate termination of the trial license.
